John In The Barn

4 0 2

Chapter 1 by Dean Sassetti

As John stepped through the open door of the barn, he could feel the flying hay cut into his skin and little drops of blood fell to the wooden floor. Gasping loudly, he tried to close the door behind him, but his hands could not find anything to hold onto. Suddenly a loud cracking noise filled the air - John had stepped on top of a tall iron nail with such force that it went right through his foot and, he guessed from the noise, it was broken now. The door was still wide open and little rocks started crushing on John's torso and face, which really didn't help the situation. Just as a big rock was storming towards him, and John was preparing for the impact, a tall man appeared inside the doorframe. He stopped the rock mid-air by forming a fist and just holding it straight. All the while he was looking at John. Then he smiled, closed the door and left John in the barn.
